HONOR LATE PRIEST

Commemorate Anniversary of Father Maguire's Death.

MEMORIAL TABLET BLESSED

Father McGulgan Makes the Address, Paying Tribute to Dead Pastor—Large Congregation Fills the Church of the Holy Comforter. Splendid Musical Programme.

Commemorating the anniversary of the death of Rev. Father Joseph J. Maguire, which occurred January 7, 1908, special memorial services were held last evening in the Church of the Holy Comforter, and solemn mass of requiem was chanted for the repose of the soul of the late pastor, at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

Rev. John Van Schaick, when speaking from the pulpit of the Church of Our Father, remarked of Father Maguire, shortly after his death, that "no night was ever so black, no storm ever so great as to deter him when a soul was in need." From the size of the assemblage yesterday it would seem that all who knew and loved the dead priest had resolved that no storm should deter them from assisting at the requiem chanted for the repose of his soul.

There were present last evening officers and members of the St. Vincent de Paul Society from every parish in the District; members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, the Knights of Columbus, Knights of America, and members of the board of directors of St. Joseph's and St. Vincent orphan asylums.

The ceremony opened with the unvailing and blessing of a memorial tablet hung at the gospel side of the sanctuary immediately above the altar rail. The tablet is of white marble, inscribed in gold as follows:

In memory of Rev. Father J. Maguire, First Pastor of this Church, Ordained December 3, 1879, Died January 7, 1908.

A Tribute from the Hearts of His People. Rev. Father Thomas E. McGulgan delivered the address. In the course of his remarks, he said:

"One year ago to-day the mother church of Washington clasped hands with her youngest daughter in mutual and sorrowful sympathy in each other's unmeasured bereavement. As the woe-smitten people of St. Patrick's stood in the profound gloom of Mount Olivet about the open grave of their well-beloved pastor and mingled their hearts' tears with the copious weeping of nature, your souls were wrung with grief and your homes made a shade of mourning by the dread announcement that the founder and first pastor of the young and vigorous parish of the Holy Comforter had departed this life.

"As the loyal children of St. Patrick's have carved in marble their perpetual love of Dr. Stafford, so, too, have the faithful of the Holy Comforter fashioned their testimony of affection for the memory of Father Maguire. This tablet is a witness to the love of a congregation of a congregation's love for a pastor. To touch it is to touch it, to look upon it is to admire, not to analyze. It is deeply engraved by the memory of each of you with the sincere tribute of your own personal affection, but no other may read these inevitable lines. It has been chiseled by loving hands and molded in the furnace of devoted hearts, and will ever commemorate the enduring gratitude of a people and the sacred fame of a priest.

"You cherish the name of Father Maguire because he was to you the pastor, the good shepherd that called to gather the scattered sheep now forming one flock in the rich pastures of the spiritual kingdom of God.

"In his youth Joseph J. Maguire suffered with the pain and anguish with the unfortunate; he found his recreation in the cell of the prisoner, and spent his holiday in the almshouse and the hospital ward. Inborn nobility of heart entered him to the abode of suffering, where his own sensitive nature shuddered at another's misery.

"A far away imagination of distress was not his, but contact sympathy was at once helpful and practical. Empty words of comfort sweet to the lips of the prosperous, but jarring sounds to the destitute, were not the oil of his anointing. Mind and heart in righteous concord made the ideal man. Then Joseph J. Maguire was the ideal man. Observation and experience had created in him a broad concern for every need, study and consultation stored his mind with wonderful resources of relief, correction, and betterment. Human motive was as an open book in which he read the passions and influences of mankind. The good he promoted and developed with prudent, far-seeing diligence. The evil he uprooted with painstaking, wise, and ceaseless energy. Charity was his constant, and his vision made him the friend of the poor and the counselor of his seniors in the interest of the poor. To the one he gave himself without patronage, to the other without affectation.

"A man beloved of the poor, trusted by his employer, filial and devoted at home, fervent in religious belief, spiritual in motive and action, great in the possession of a noble soul, Joseph J. Maguire offered himself a holocaust to the service of the altar.

"A student of man, even more than of books, Father Maguire knew his audience and placed before them the truths of salvation and the precepts of the Gospels with an earnestness and intensity that reached ever heart. His words carried conviction and consolation to the faithful and repentant; compunction and shame to the unrepentant sinner. He had watched from youth in the mire of wickedness unstained and with extraordinary insight would search out the cause of sin and suggest a remedy.

It was noted and just that such a character and life should be crowned with the sacred dignity of sacerdotal power and rewarded with the sweet participation in the eternal priesthood of Christ."

Music of the Service.

The music of the memorial service, chanted in plain Gregorian, included the "De Profundis" and "Miserere," sung in quartet by James Nolan, Dr. William M. Kemball, J. J. Neff, and Dr. W. P. Kenney. "Veni Creator" was sung by Dr. Kemball.

Solemn mass of requiem was sung by Rev. Father Charles E. Boone, of St. Austin's College, who was assistant at Holy Comforter Church during Father Maguire's pastorate. Rev. Father Clarence E. Wheeler was the deacon, and Rev. Father Andrew H. Milne, subdeacon of the mass.

William Murray and Roman Osborne acted as masters of ceremonies. Edward Sweney, Edward Sierschell, Raymond Brooke, Ralph Weschler, and Wilfred Whitacre, thurifers and acolytes.

Rev. James M. Gillis, C. S. P., president of St. Thomas Aquinas College, Charles W. Warren, treasurer, of the Indian Bureau, were present in the sanctuary.

Walter's requiem mass was sung by the regular mixed-voice choir, under the direction of Miss M. M. Talbot, organist.

One Sweetly Sung "Thou Art" was sung by Mrs. John S. Jr., Miss Enid
